

Kevjn Lim is a Middle East and North Africa consultant analyst for IHS Markit's Country Risk Analysis and Forecasting Team, a research fellow at Tel Aviv University's Alliance Center for Iranian Studies (ACIS), and a PhD candidate at Tel Aviv University's School of Political Science, Government and International Affairs awaiting approval for his submitted dissertation, "Between crusade and crisis: power, perception and politics in the making of Iranian grand strategy, 1988-2017". He was previously a delegate with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) with postings in the Palestinian West Bank, Sudan's Darfur region, Iraq, Gadhafi's Libya and Afghanistan, handling issues linked to the protection of the civilian population in the context of International Humanitarian Law, and networking with non-state actors and armed militias.